

Inspirational Transformations

Ever dreamed of creating the perfect outdoor space but didn't know where to start?

> WORDS BY ALISON SHAW

Don't bother flicking through reams of unknown contractors in the phone book. Anson Mackay has all the answers in one simple, trustworthy local solution.

A family business built up over several years, the husband-and-wife team will take you through the transformation of your garden from initial thoughts to alternative concepts, materials, project management, construction and final completion.

Whether it's just a new side gate, updating your front garden or a total revamp of your outdoor environment, they and their personal team are there with you all the way, providing the vision and the professionalism to turn the project from idea to reality.

With a reputation for excellence established through personal recommendations, many of their clients come back time and again, as their gardens grow and evolve with changing family lifestyles or a house move. Anson Mackay's expertise encompasses every phase: sandpits and scooter areas for toddlers; trampoline and basketball corners for older children; barbecues and parking space for teenagers; traditional or contemporary entertainment and relaxation areas for parents. Never mind ponds, decking raised beds or easy maintenance gardens for the non-gardener or the less able.

"You may not be in your forever house but we can ensure you enjoy stunning outdoor space while adding value in the meantime," explains Fay Mackay, the creative flair behind the business. She'll discuss every aspect and consider each family member's needs – including the dog – to develop the design, even providing a personal shopping service, selecting materials for clients unsure how to source them.

Husband Anson and his skilled team are the ones who put the plan into action, whether traditional or bespoke construction. Trusted, approachable and accommodating, they'll feel like new friends by the time they deliver your dream space.
